(revised)

Chuo University

In response to the declaration of a state of emergency for the new coronavirus in accordance with Article 32, Act on Special Measures for Pandemic Influenza and New Infectious Diseases Preparedness and Response, and the announcement by the Tokyo Metropolitan Government, Chuo University has revised its “Guidelines for Chuo University students regarding the spread of the coronavirus infection” issued on April 6. The following guidelines for students now apply:

Chuo University has already implemented various measures to prevent the spread of the new coronavirus and we are very sorry that, at the moment, students are unable to make full use of our educational and research environment, and unable to engage sufficiently in activities such as studies, cultural activities, arts, sports, and volunteer activities. All students should proceed with their studies at home while paying close attention to maintaining their health and checking online notices from the University. All faculty members and staff of Chuo University sincerely wish for the continuing safety of all students and their families.

Chuo University students are prohibited from entering the campuses from April 8 (Wed) to May 6 (Wed). In addition, no extracurricular activities are allowed. However, campus entry restrictions may change depending on the situation.

As for facilities that require separate decisions because of the characteristics of the facilities, such as the International Residences and residences used by clubs belonging to the Association of Student Clubs, separate standards may be established. Please follow the instructions from the relevant facility management section.
